Unico Reserva Especial 2020

Ribera del Duero, Spain

Tasting notes: Intense ripe cherry red color , with sharp edge , a reflection that the wine is in correctly. On the nose , aromas are prevalent in the toasty wood notes with countersunk its oxidative evolution during his years in cask. Amplitude has aged but clean flavors of wood, dry and pleasantly bitter tannins from oak, with his touch of light sweetness of her spirit .

It is a very long wine flavor with race. Maintains resiliency provided by your good acidity balanced with a resounding alcoholic .

Alcohol :13,50 %

Composition: 93% Tempranillo, 7% Cabernet Sauvignon

Unico Reserva Especial 2020

Robert Parker (RP) : 98 Points (2020)

To be released in 2020, the NV Único Reserva Especial 2020 Release is a non-vintage blend of 59 barrels from 2008, 2009 and 2010, mostly Tempranillo with some Cabernet Sauvignon. This wine has been getting closer to the style of the Único, and the blend is from vintages very close to the current release of Único, but somehow this year I think the blend has added some complexity to the bottled wine, which has the heart and soul of the 2010 vintage. In fact, they told me they are keeping more wine to have some older vintages to blend for this Reserva Especial, because in the last few years, the wine has been a little too young for the style that it used to have in the past. This has finesse and some of the Burgundian style of the blends of yesteryear. 17,071 bottles and 214 magnums produced. It was bottled in June 2016.
