M3 Chardonnay 2022

Adelaide Hills, Australia

Region and Vineyards

The Adelaide Hills region is recognized for its ideal conditions for cool-climate varieties like Chardonnay, where altitude and a long growing season enable nuanced and complex flavor development. The 2022 season began with a cool start influenced by La Niña, producing a smaller fruit set but allowing for extended ripening as summer progressed. The weather remained mild, with some late-season warmth enhancing the fruit's aromatic intensity and ripeness while maintaining fresh acidity.

Shaw + Smith's vineyards at Balhannah, Lenswood, and Piccadilly are meticulously managed to yield high-quality Chardonnay that reflects the distinct Adelaide Hills terroir. These vineyards cover 59 hectares and are planted with sustainable practices that protect the health of the vines and soil. In December, conditions were mild, though a few well-timed showers sustained the vines' vigor, ensuring optimal fruit quality.

Winemaking

Shaw + Smith's approach to the M3 Chardonnay 2022 emphasizes gentle handling and minimal intervention to highlight the purity of the fruit. Hand-picked whole bunches are pressed using an air-bag press to extract juice without excess phenolic influence. The juice is then transferred to French oak barrels for fermentation, adding structure and subtle oak influence. This Chardonnay undergoes malolactic fermentation, which softens the acidity and enhances mouthfeel, followed by approximately 9 months in oak for further complexity.

After aging in oak, the batches are blended in stainless steel tanks before bottling, resulting in a Chardonnay with depth, elegance, and well-integrated flavors. The result is a Chardonnay that combines vibrant acidity with richness, making it suitable for immediate enjoyment or extended cellaring.
