

Dr Loosen

From the famed Erdener Treppchen vineyard, the Dr Loosen Riesling Auslese delivers a rich, botrytis-affected sweetness, complemented by vibrant acidity and slate-driven minerality.

DR. LOOSEN

Erdener Treppchen Riesling Auslese 2018

Mosel, Germany

Region and Vineyards:

The Mosel Valley, where Dr. Loosen is located, is renowned for its steep, slate-covered slopes, which produce some of the finest Riesling wines in the world. The Erdener Treppchen vineyard, situated on one of the Mosel's steepest hillsides, is particularly famous for its red slate soil. This unique terroir imparts a distinctive mineral and stony character to the wines, balancing the richness of the fruit with an underlying freshness. The vineyard's steep, south-facing aspect allows for optimal sun exposure, helping the grapes to ripen fully while retaining their natural acidity.

The vines in Erdener Treppchen are notably ungrafted, with many over 100 years old. These ancient vines produce low yields of highly concentrated fruit, contributing to the wine's intense flavor and structure. The red slate soil not only influences the minerality but also helps retain heat, promoting the development of noble rot (botrytis), which is essential for crafting rich, sweet wines like Auslese.

Winemaking:

This Riesling Auslese is made from carefully selected grapes that have been affected by botrytis (noble rot), a natural process that dehydrates the grapes, concentrating their sugars and flavors. The grapes are picked late in the harvest season to ensure maximum ripeness and complexity. After harvesting, the grapes undergo gentle pressing to extract their juice, which is then fermented in stainless steel tanks to preserve the purity and freshness of the fruit.

The fermentation process is stopped early by chilling, leaving a significant amount of residual sugar (approximately 78.4 g/L), which gives the wine its luscious sweetness. This residual sugar is balanced by the wine's high acidity (10.1 g/L), creating a wine that is both rich and refreshing. The wine is bottled at a relatively low alcohol level of 8%, which enhances its drinkability and aging potential.

Erdener Treppchen Riesling Auslese 2018

Tasting Notes:

- Color: A glowing golden hue, reflecting the wine's ripeness and concentration.
- Aroma: The nose opens with intense aromas of ripe apricot, honey, and tropical fruits, supported by subtle floral and mineral notes.
- Palate: On the palate, it is richly textured, with flavors of peach, mango, and honeycomb. The sweetness is beautifully offset by the wine's vibrant acidity, leaving a long, clean, and refreshing finish with a touch of slate-driven minerality.

Did you know?

The Erdener Treppchen vineyard's name translates to "little steps of Erden," a reference to the stone steps that were built into the hillside to help workers navigate the steep slopes. These steps have been used for centuries and are still in place today, a testament to the region's long history of winemaking. Additionally, Dr. Loosen has been in the Loosen family for over 200 years, with Ernst Loosen taking the helm in 1988 and elevating the estate to one of the most respected producers in the Mosel.

Wine Pairing Ideas:

- Foie gras: The richness of foie gras is complemented by the wine's sweetness and acidity, creating a luxurious and balanced pairing.
- Spicy Asian dishes: The wine's sweetness helps to temper the heat in spicy dishes, while its acidity keeps the palate refreshed.
- Blue cheese: The intense flavors of blue cheese are softened by the wine's sweet fruit, creating a harmonious contrast.
- Fruit-based desserts: Pairing the wine with an apple tart or peach cobbler highlights the wine's fruitiness and enhances the dessert's flavors.

Wines & Spirits (W&S) : 96 Points (2018)

This comes from a vineyard named for the ancient stone steps (Treppchen) built into the steep red-clay slopes. Loosen's old vines, rooted in these warm, sun-drenched soils, produced a concentrated Auslese in 2018, with a meaty stone-fruit ripeness. It's fresh, dark in tone, the fruit suffused with a button-mushroom earthiness and spice notes that make it feel rich rather than sweet. The acidity is fantastic, strong enough to suggest pairing this with a savory dish, like roast game.
