Region and Vineyards

Sourced from select vineyards on the slopes of Mount Aenos in Kefalonia, Greece, the Mavro benefits from a unique microclimate. The rocky, limestone-rich soils and elevated terrain contribute to the wine's distinctive character, imparting minerality and structure. The cooling breezes from the Ionian Sea moderate temperatures, allowing for a prolonged ripening period that enhances flavor development and complexity. These conditions are ideal for cultivating Mavrodaphne, enabling the production of a wine that authentically reflects the terroir of Kefalonia.

Winemaking

The Mavro is produced with minimal intervention, allowing the true essence of the Mavrodaphne grape to shine. The wine undergoes fermentation and aging in stainless steel tanks, preserving its vibrant fruit character and natural freshness. This approach results in a wine that is both expressive in its youth and possesses the structure to age gracefully, developing further complexity over time.

Tasting Notes

- Color: Deep ruby with garnet reflections.
- Aroma: An exuberant bouquet of ripe red fruits, wild herbs, and spices, reflecting the wild Kefalonian nature.
- Palate: A harmonious balance of fruit and herbal notes, with silky tannins and a long, evolving finish.

Did you know?

Traditionally known for producing sweet wines, Mavrodaphne reveals a different dimension when vinified as a dry red, offering a complex and age-worthy profile that reflects the diverse terroir of Kefalonia.
