Region and Vineyards

Gavalas Posta comes from a mosaic of vineyards across the Cyclades, including the volcanic soils of Santorini and the calcareous terroirs of Paros. The Assyrtiko portion is sourced from younger vines (less than 30 years old) in Megalochori, a historical village at the heart of Santorini viticulture. These sites benefit from the intense sunlight and cooling maritime breezes, which help to retain acidity and develop aromatic intensity.

The Monemvasia used in the blend hails from Paros Island, offering a broader texture and softer fruit expression. A smaller proportion of Athiri, another indigenous Aegean variety, is occasionally included to enhance aromatic lift and roundness.

Winemaking

The grapes are hand-harvested, ensuring careful selection and preservation of freshness. The vinification follows a classic white wine protocol, with fermentation occurring at cool temperatures (14–16 °C) in stainless steel vats to emphasize purity and fruit-forward character.

The wine is then aged for 3 to 4 months on fine lees, still in stainless steel, adding subtle texture and complexity without oak influence. This approach results in a crisp, aromatic white that reflects its Cycladic origins.

Tasting Notes

- Color: Pale straw with greenish reflections.
- Aroma: Fresh and expressive, showing green apple, lemon zest, and a faint herbal nuance.
- Palate: Medium-bodied and vibrant, with crisp acidity and flavors that echo the nose—bright citrus and orchard fruit, with a mineral edge and clean finish.

Did you know?

Monemvasia, one of the blending grapes, takes its name from a fortified medieval town in the Peloponnese, but in this wine it is sourced from Paros, where the grape thrives in dry, sun-drenched conditions. Historically, it was associated with the sweet wine "Malvasia," once highly prized in Renaissance Europe.

Wine Pairing Ideas

- Sea bream with herb oil: The wine's freshness enhances the delicacy of white fish and mirrors herbal accents.
- Pasta with lemon cream sauce: The crisp acidity cuts through richness and elevates citrus elements.
- Greek village salad: A natural match with tomatoes, olives, and feta, complementing the wine's brightness.
- Lightly grilled calamari: Both oceanic and zesty, this dish harmonizes with the wine's saline backbone.
