Monterey Pinot Gris 2022

California, USA

Region and Vineyards

The Monterey appellation in California's Central Coast is celebrated for its cool marine influence, ideal for white varieties such as Pinot Gris. The vineyards benefit from strong afternoon winds and fog from the nearby Pacific, which significantly lengthen the growing season. This slow ripening enhances aromatic development and preserves acidity.

For the 2022 vintage, the growing season was marked by cool spring and early summer conditions, leading to extended hangtime on the vine and slow, even ripening. The fruit was harvested on September 22, with concentrated flavors, bright acidity, and fine phenolic structure - a clear indicator of quality. Grapes were sourced from four distinct vineyards near King City, Soledad, and Greenfield, rooted in well-drained loamy soils that contribute to the wine's mineral tension and clarity.

Winemaking

Harvested at optimal ripeness, the grapes were gently pressed and fermented primarily in stainless steel (95%) to preserve freshness and varietal purity. A small portion (5%) underwent fermentation in neutral oak, adding a subtle layer of texture and roundness.

The winemaking focused on capturing the wine's natural vibrancy while introducing just enough complexity to support its fruit core. No malolactic fermentation was induced, preserving the wine's crisp, linear acidity. Bottled on January 17, the wine retains a youthful character, with a clean, expressive style that reflects both terroir and technique.
