Salta, Argentina

Region and Vineyards

The Calchaquí Valley, located in northwest Argentina, is renowned for its elevation, standing out as one of the highest vineyard regions in the world. Positioned at 1,798 meters above sea level, these vineyards experience a dry climate with less than 150 mm of annual rainfall and a wide thermal amplitude, ideal for slow grape maturation, intensifying color, and flavor development. The soils at Finca Las Mercedes, where this wine originates, are rocky and sandy with very low organic matter, leading to a wine with natural structure and concentration.

This altitude and arid climate ensure that the grapes maintain fresh acidity while developing ripe, concentrated flavors, particularly suitable for bold red blends like Malbec, Tannat, and Petit Verdot.

Winemaking

Amalaya Tinto is a blend of 85% Malbec, 10% Tannat, and 5% Petit Verdot. The grapes are mechanically harvested from the Las Mercedes Estate and undergo meticulous selection. The wine is then aged for 8 months in French oak barrels, with only 25% of the wine aged in oak, preserving its fresh fruit character while adding complexity. The result is a balanced wine that showcases both varietal expression and the impact of this unique terroir.

The wine has an alcohol content of 14%, a total acidity of 5.4 g/L, a pH of 3.71, and residual sugar at 3.6 g/L, resulting in a round, well-structured, and refreshing finish.

Tasting Notes

- Color: Brilliant ruby with violet edges, indicating freshness and youth.
- Aroma: Aromas of strawberries, raspberries, and ripe red fruit, complemented by hints of pepper, spice, and elegant floral notes.
- Palate: Fresh flavors of red fruit, spice, and a subtle hint of vanilla from the French oak. The wine has round, soft tannins and a delicate, lingering finish with excellent freshness.

Did you know?

The name Amalaya, meaning "hope for a miracle," reflects the Calchaquí Valley's challenging terroir, where traditional farmers relied on faith and hope for a prosperous harvest. Today, Amalaya wines continue to honor this heritage, capturing the unique characteristics of this high-altitude region through meticulous viticulture and winemaking.

Wine Pairing Ideas

- Argentinian Empanadas: The wine's balanced tannins and fruity profile complement the savory, spiced filling of traditional empanadas.
- Spicy Chorizo and Red Pepper Stew: The spice in the wine enhances the flavors of the chorizo, while its acidity cuts through the richness of the stew.
- Grilled Portobello Mushrooms with Herbs: The earthy flavors of mushrooms resonate with the wine's minerality and fresh finish, creating a harmonious pairing.
- Lamb Burgers with Mint and Garlic Aioli: The wine's red fruit notes and soft tannins pair well with the lamb, while the mint adds a refreshing touch that complements its lively acidity.

Tim Atkin (TA) : 91 Points (2018)

Amalaya sources this wine from its Finca Las Mercedes in the Calchaquí Valleys, combining Malbec with 7.5% Tannat and 2.5% Petit Verdot. Richly coloured, juicy and aromatic, with just a touch of oak and supple, caressing tannins.

Wine Enthusiast (WE) : 91 Points (2018)

Herbal black fruit aromas are touched up by notes of earthy spice and cured meat. A prodding palate is both solid and tannic, while this Salta Malbec tastes of blackberry, dark plum, herbs and spices. A lush finish is equally stout, and overall you won't find much fault in this. Robert Parker (RP) : 89 Points (2018)

The grapey and juicy 2018 Malbec was a good representation of the varietal in the northern region of Salta, with intense aromas and pungent flavors. It's approachable and has very fine tannins, a dry finish and a nice texture. In reality, it also contains 10% Tannat and 5% Petit Verdot, but it can still be called Malbec. 695,000 bottles produced. It was bottled in November 2018.
